Join us in creating awesome

Bringing a community together

We're a rapidly growing community at MIT of creators who share one simple desire: to collaborate on our passions with amazing people. At the beginning of each semester we pitch ideas and ongoing projects, make teams, and build the bleeding edge together. With a strong focus on technology, our projects vary as widely as our personalities, from software to hardware, zany to industrial, local to global, and beyond.

Hackathon meets Incubator

We all meet up once a week to create our projects, share ideas, and enjoy good food. People freely come and go from our collaborative group space. Our community members' involvement ranges from just building a couple hours per week at meetups, to dropping out of MIT to pursue the full-time creation of our ventures, with most of us somewhere in between.

Building big things

At the end of each semester we celebrate and our guest judges (potentially you!) award a variety of cash prizes to our teams. We're looking for sponsors like you to form relationships with so that when our technologies and services are ready for the big leagues, we can bring them to the world.

Talent

Pre-dominantly Course 6 (EECS) and the type of people who spend their Saturdays hacking on projects, Incube includes many of the strongest engineers at MIT.

Questions? Shoot us an email at incube@mit.edu and we'd be happy to talk via email or phone!
